

Touch Wine launch

South Australia's most anticipated wine industry fundraising event, Touch Wine 2009, will be officially launched at Aria Restaurant on Thursday 27 August.

The Hutt Street Centre Touch Wine event is a fundraiser supported by South Australia's wine industry to raise money for Adelaide's homeless. In its five year history the event has raised $363,000.

Each November, Adelaide's southern parklands are transformed into a touch footy frenzy with more than 700 wine industry personnel battling it out on the fields for the coveted Touch Wine trophy.

Next week's launch will provide guests, including UK wine writer Matthew Jukes, Olympic rower Amber Halliday and world champion cyclist Shane Kelly, and Minister Patrick Conlon with a bevy of teasers in the lead up to the main event on Sunday, November 15. Guests can sample 60 new release wines and view Touch Wine's exciting new website which will make participating in this year's event easier than ever.
